Registration is open for the PTAB, ANAI and Digilab-University of Rome 4-Day High Level Training Course on ISO 16363 at University of Rome Sapienza, Rome (Digilab, via dei Volsci 122), Italy, 1-4 February 2016 for Managers of Digital Repositories, by the authors of these standards

The Primary Trustworthy Digital Repository Authorisation Body (ISO-PTAB) plays a major role in training auditors and repository managers. There are three important ISO standards:

- ISO 14721:2012 (OAIS – a reference model for what is required for an archive to provide long-term preservation of digital information)
- ISO 16363:2013 (Audit and certification of trustworthy digital repositories – sets out comprehensive metrics for what an archive must do, based on OAIS)
- ISO 16919:2014 (Requirements for bodies providing audit and certification of candidate trustworthy digital repositories – specifies the competencies and requirements on auditing bodies)

These three standards form a closely related family and an understanding of their principles and use will become increasingly important in establishing an internationally recognised and certified set of trustworthy digital repositories.

For registration visit www.anai.org. Registration deadlines is Monday 25th January 2016.
